

Relax, and enjoy food, flavors and friends

The food growing experience doesn't finish when plants are harvested. It continues into the kitchen to where food is prepared and served. Sometimes it doesn't even leave the garden.

Join urban farming instructor Jon Walsh and urban grower Andrew Gebert for an exclusive lunch in a deck garden in Tokyo. You'll discover what to sow and grow in spring, and when to start. You'll learn how to sow seeds, and take home a pot. You'll find out how to transplant seedlings, where to buy what you need, and how food can help people in need.

Ask anything you want to know to get ready for the new season and start your own garden, surrounded by a soon-to-bloom Tokyo deck garden.

Bring some food for your lunch and to share. Better still, bring a dish containing a vegetable or herb you want to learn how to grow, and you'll find out just that.
